

Dear @Burberry,

I cannot help but notice the continual disrespect towards me and my character. In a previous message I vowed to forget the quite unpleasant interaction between us two for the sake of a beautiful future potentially lying ahead. That being said, you have replied in an exceedingly disrespectful manner which very much has both insulted me, and tarnished my name in this lovely community I call home. If you wish to slander and mock my professionalistic intent, and ruin my reputation among my friends and acquaintances, I request you provide, at minimum, a disclaimer presenting the quite truthful idea that everything you say is your personal opinion and nothing more, nothing less.

To address your title, I am quite sorry that I presumed you to be a 'Professional Discord Moderator.' However, I must clarify that there was no ill intent to this. In fact, I feel as though the 'Professional Discord Moderator' title is held in quite high honor throughout many communities on the World Wide Web and meant to use it only as a sign of respect and high authority. As a 'Freelance Discord Moderator' myself of many 'Discord Servers' I must say I can only hope to one day potentially become a 'Professional Discord Moderator.'

To finalize my thoughts, I request that you do not threaten me in any way as it is not only illegal in most regions, but is also tremendously uncomfortable to be on the other side of.

I hope you understand,
@Mahwoo of the Aglet Discord Server